"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN AUSTRIA."

The prettiest woman in Austria is Fraulein Martens, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

The Fraulein is not only the prettiest woman by natural right, but she is the prettiest by popular vote. At a contest held to determine the handsomest woman in Franz Joseph's kingdom the Fraulein received the majority of votes.

Fraulein Martens has certain beauties which are hard to match anywhere. They are, first, a sweet, kindly expression of the eyes. They are as gentle as the eyes of a dove and, indeed, she has been likened to a dove so many times that she is known as the Dove Beauty.

The Fraulein takes great care of her hair. She calls it her crown of glory. She keeps it brilliantly brushed until one can almost see one's face in the polished surface. And she keeps it bright. Her hair, which is rather a bright brown, is always at just that shade when it can be said to "bloom." It is not an auburn, but it is something of a chestnut.

To keep the hair this color the Fraulein has it wet with cool water once a week. Then she rubs a raw egg into it. Then she takes and washes it with white Castile soap, using a great quantity on the hair. She rinses it, not with a small hair spray, but in the bath. She puts her head over the tub while a spray falls from above and cleanses the hair. The water is allowed to run for a long time upon the locks until they are thoroughly free from soap.

Shampooing the hair with a bath spray let down from way up above is one of the best tonics for the head. It invigorates the scalp and makes it almost tingle. In this way the roots of the hair are kept lively and the hair does not grow gray so quickly. It is a Viennese method of shampooing the hair, which, by the way, is allowed to fall over the head and neck while it is being rinsed.

Fraulein Martens uses the Vienna method of making the skin clear. It is called creaming the skin. It is made clear as cream and it is very much the same color. The skin is never dark and never muddy. It is a clear, beautiful olive, through which the blushes rise. Muddy colored skin never blushes, but a clear olive skin will show every emotion of the heart.

To get this clear skin there is always a tonic dose necessary. The old-fashioned English treacle and sulphur is given for three mornings and then omitted for three. This is done all the year round. The dose is a mild one, but it is never omitted for more than three mornings. A teaspoonful is given and the skin owes its clearness to this.

Then the Fraulein takes a sparkling water. Instead of eating candy and taking poisons into her system she drinks a great draught of sparkling water. Sometimes, after the fashion of the women of Vienna, she takes a very light sparkling wine, or a glass of pure sweet beer. She never takes more than one glass, but she considers a deep draught of sparkling liquid a great beautifier.

Fraulein Martens has a way of taking care of her skin that is remarkable. She takes off the dust of the day with a specially made cold cream which she uses as though it were a sponge. It is rather heavy and thick and she places it on her face, using it in handfuls. Then she rubs it off with a piece of cotton. Then she washes her face many times in hot water.

Finally she takes the London dip. This is always practiced by the beauties of London. A basin is filled with cool, though not very cold, water and the face is dashed with it. This is to cool the skin and drive the blood back and make it clear.

After this process the Fraulein rests and for one good hour in the early twilight she closes her eyes and gets a complete rest.

There are other beauty specialties of this famous and lovely woman, but they are of the kind that are sensible rather than common. They are not generally known and on that account are rather unique.

The Fraulein never goes out in sloppy weather unless fully protected. She never allows herself to catch cold.

She never has chapped cheeks nor a red nose.

It is years since she has had an influenza or even that Viennese scourge, hay fever.

If the Fraulein is indisposed she remains in bed or lies upon the couch. No one has ever seen her except at her very best.

The Fraulein never laces. Though her taste in dress is exquisite, she never, on any occasion, wears tight clothing, or tight collars, or anything that pinches the feet.

The Fraulein, though she has a charming voice, always speaks in a very gentle tone.

The Fraulein has lovely hands and it is said that she wears gloves all day unless she is receiving callers. Her palms are so pink that she has been suspected of tinting them just a little and her nails are just the shape of her finger tips and pink right to the very ends.

The Fraulein is the most popular woman in Austria and her popularity is largely due to her charming expression and the dovetail gentleness of her eyes. She was voted the beauty with these special points mentioned.

Mrs. Superville, who accompanied her daughter, Miss Marie Josefa and her niece, Miss Durant, to Mobile Friday, returned and spent Sunday here and left Monday morning for Tampa, whence she sails tonight for her home in Havana, Cuba. A host of friends regretted to see Mrs. Superville go and anticipate her return with pleasure, for, she is always a delightful and welcome acquisition to local society.

Miss Warren left Sunday night for New Orleans, to resume her studies at Sophie Newcome.

Miss Cora Brent and Miss Josie Knowles have returned to school in New York and Baltimore, and Mr. Ellis Knowles has returned to Yale.

The merry young school set who have made the holidays gay and happy with their fun and frolic, with few exceptions, have returned to their studies at school, college or university, all the better prepared to study and acquit themselves creditably, by the jolly good times they had at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hyer, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Turner, Miss Heintz, of Buffalo, and Miss Bernadette Quina, Mr. J. F. Leonard and Mr. Robert Quina form a charming party who will leave Thursday noon for Mobile to witness Ben-Hur.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. D'Alemberte and Dr. and Mrs. Clinton D'Alemberte will leave Wednesday to attend the D'Alemberte-Rouse wedding in Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Turner and Miss Turner leave Wednesday noon for Greenville, Ala., to attend the wedding of Mrs. Turner's sister, Miss Kate Rouse, and Mr. Herbert D'Alemberte.

Mr. Herron D'Alemberte will leave Wednesday to attend the wedding of his brother in Greenville, after which he will return to college.

The death of Dr. John A. Brosnahan, has brought sorrow to many hearts outside his large family connection, for he was generally beloved as a most kindly gentleman.

There was a large congregation who appeared flatteringly interested in the sermon of Rev. J. L. Rogers, Sunday morning and evening, in Gadsden.

Street, M. E. Church. Mr. Rogers and family have made a most agreeable impression on all who have met them, and the prospects are that, under Rev. Henry T. Johnson of the Palafox Street Church and Rev. Geo. W. Carpenter of the mission churches, the Methodists will be able to accomplish the greatest work this year, in their local history.

There was considerable disappointment at the evening service that Mr. Marion Clutter's cold prevented her from singing her solo, as expected, but otherwise the music was excellent.

Mr. Wm. S. Crane, of California, Md., suffered for years from rheumatism and lumbago. He was finally advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did and it effected a complete cure. This liniment is for sale by all druggists.

AMUSEMENTS.
LAST NIGHT'S PLAY.
A large and appreciative audience greeted Miss Mabel Paige, the "Idol of the South" and her superb company at the opera house last night when the company presented the five-act drama, "The Pearl of Savoy."

The piece was handsomely staged and Miss Paige was supported by a capable company of well trained artists. The specialty work between the acts was about the best that has been seen here this year, the team of Ruf and Cusick doing exceptionally good work, Miss Cusick's sweet voice being a feature.

From the indications of last night, the company no doubt will do "the record business for any of the one-week companies."

All the scenery used by the company has been made specially for their productions and is some of the finest ever seen in Pensacola.

At to-night's performance "Jack's Sweetheart," will be the bill and no doubt Miss Paige will be greeted by a packed house.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

the category of the cities of more than 40,000, as the present ratio of increase will in the coming five years be compounded.

Precisely the same conditions existing at the date of the foregoing, still prevail, and I am incapable of stating them in language more forcible than I did a year ago.

The Basis of Wealth.

The basis of the wealth of any state or section are the products of its soil. The territory immediately contiguous to Pensacola, has not been regarded in the past as adapted to agricultural development. This very erroneous idea results from the fact that other pursuits yielding quicker returns for labor have monopolized the time of the residents of this section. This employment has been chiefly confined to the several departments of the timber and lumber industry. The theater of these industries is being steadily removed further and further into the interior, leaving in its wake thousands of acres of lands cleared of their forest growth.

Agricultural Possibilities.

Experiments made upon these lands have proven beyond cavil that in point of productiveness of any of the crops usually cultivated in other sections of the South, these lands are equal, if not superior; and in addition, that because of the mildness of the climate, there are numerous other very profitable crops impossible to cultivate in other sections of the South which are indigenous to the soil of the territory immediately surrounding Pensacola.

The most direct and convincing means of exploiting these agricultural possibilities, as well as of stimulating an interest on the part of our rural neighbors in these pursuits, is through the medium of an agricultural fair.

Agricultural Fair Proposed.

If the co-operation of the business interests of Pensacola is possible to be secured, it is my desire, and purpose, with the Chamber's endorsement, to promote a fair of this character to be held in Pensacola during the coming late summer or early fall.

Worthless Advertising.

Another matter which should be taken up by the organization is that of worthless advertising schemes which are almost constantly being promoted here by fakirs and grafters at the expense of our business institutions.

In numerous other cities throughout the country, this abuse of the business interests, has been taken up vigorously by the commercial organizations. In most cases, special committees are appointed to co-operate with the secretary or manager of the organization in investigating the merits of every advertising enterprise proposed, and if an adverse report is made by the committee, the scheme is turned down. Several thousand dollars are spent annually in Pensacola, in advertising which does not induce the return of one dollar of its cost.

Street Improvements.

The year 1904, should unquestionably be designated here as the year in which more has been accomplished in the matter of street improvement than in any like period of Pensacola's history. Several miles of excellent temporary streets have been constructed of clay and cinders, and the old streets have been well kept up during the year, considering the limited means at the disposal of the city officials for such purposes.

Bond Issue Needed.

Without a bond issue, however, the permanent improvements so necessary to enhance the physical appearance of the city and so essential to its comfort and necessities, can never be undertaken. And from all indications it now appears that a bond issue is impossible until amendments are made to the enabling act of 1901, authorizing the issuance of bonds for public improvements by the city of Pensacola.

Officers Thanked.

In conclusion, I desire to thank the officers and board of directors for their uniform co-operation with me in all of my undertakings as your secretary, during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
W. C. JONES.

A DOUBTING THOMAS.

Had His Falling Hair Stopped, and Dandruff Cured, Without Faith.

H. B. Fletcher, Butte, Mont., Oct. 20, 1896, says: "Like many other people, I have been troubled for many years with dandruff, and within the last few months my hair came out so badly that I was compelled to have what I had left clipped very close. A friend recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I confess that I doubted his story; but I gave Herpicide a trial; now my hair is as thick as ever, and entirely free from dandruff. 'Destroy the cause, you remove the effect.' Herpicide is a delightful hair dressing for regular use. Sold by leading druggists. For sale by W. A. D'Alemberte, druggist and apothecary, 121 S. Palafox. Send 10 cents in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Company, Detroit, Mich."
